

Our time here has been such a delight, and I can't imagine a more quaint, endearing place to stay! Mark and I wanted a honeymoon site that fit our personalities, and this couldn't have been more perfect (we're both lovers of all things medieval and our studies have been in the areas of medieval history, literature and theology). As travellers from the other side of the Atlantic, we filled our time seeing all sorts of delights, but it was well worth it. My only regret is that we didn't spend enough time nearby, enjoying the 'castle turret'.

For those of us used to driving long distances, ~~the closer~~ there is so much in reach - Vespers at the Abbaye du Solesmes, Tours Cathedral, Chateau Villandry (gardens, especially), Mont St-Michel, D-Day beaches and Cemeteries, Chateau Chenonceau, and so much more exploring locally!

Thanks for everything, we've had such a wonderful time in the warmly decorated military stronghold. It's even better than we imagined it would be!
